Rocket PressWire Officially Launches Newswire Distribution Services for Businesses

Published: September 30, 2026 | Company: Rocket PressWire | By: Bella Jackson

September 1, 2026 — Rocket PressWire officially launched on September 1, 2026, introducing a newswire distribution platform created to help businesses, brands, agencies, and organizations share important announcements with broader audiences through press release distribution.

The launch provides businesses with a dedicated platform for distributing news about company developments, product and service launches, partnerships, milestones, events, and other announcements that are relevant to their audiences.

Rocket PressWire offers businesses two distribution methods: Package Distribution and Single Distribution. This allows customers to select an option based on their distribution needs, whether they require a broad visibility or want to distribute a specific announcement on a desired news website such as USA Today.

Package Distribution is designed for businesses seeking publications across 350+ websites through a package. The package starts from $189.

Single Distribution is intended for businesses that need to distribute an individual press release without committing to a package. It offers an option for companies looking to get a specific announcement published on a specific website.

“Rocket PressWire was created to give businesses a straightforward way to distribute news and communicate important developments,” said a Rocket PressWire representative. “By offering both Package Distribution and Single Distribution, we aim to provide flexible options for businesses with different communication requirements.”

Rocket PressWire is designed to support businesses and organizations looking to expand the reach of their announcements and strengthen their digital presence through PR distribution. The platform also provides an organized process for submitting content, reviewing releases, and receiving publication reports through its dashboard.

The September 1 launch marks the official beginning of Rocket PressWire’s newswire distribution services, giving businesses a dedicated resource for sharing their stories and announcements with wider audiences.

For more information about Rocket PressWire and its services, should visit official website.